

Housing affordability is complicated and critical. Overwhelming and exhausting for so many in our community. It can seem like a crisis beyond solving. Fortunately, we know nearly 600 families in Lexington who would disagree.

While working alongside these families, we saw how a stable, affordable place to live is often just out of reach.

We saw aging homeowners who could continue to live independently as their mobility declines, if only they could afford a ramp and walk-in shower.

We met renters who paid high rates faithfully for years, but are still told they do not qualify for a home loan.

We grew to love folks who spent decades paying off their home, but now their fixed income can't cover fixing the leaky roof that will surely lead to rotted subfloors and dangerous mold.

For many of our neighbors, the solution is clear.

Modifications that make their home accessible. A chance to invest in their own home, having proven themselves again and again as a reliable neighbor. A repair that prevents a devastating domino effect.

Lexington Habitat is ready to bridge these gaps and bring stable, affordable housing within reach of more people in Lexington - but it can not be done without you.

P.S. Right now Djoum is learning to read in her bedroom. The first bedroom she has ever had to herself. Thanks to your support. Here she is moments after seeing it for the first time. How many other kids like Djoum can we help together?
